I want to have a background color applied to the whole body of the page and any of its child elements for this to work would have a slightly different color applied to them. So in the example below the 'bar' would be the same color as the background (i.e blue). However, I don't know how to change this color. I have tried... #body {background-color: blue;} But this makes the body a solid blue instead of having the background applied to the body and any child elements. A: The body is a html element, and it has a solid, definitive color assigned to it. If you want a body background color with any child elements, you can use a body * selector. body {background-color: blue;} body * {background-color: red;} Check this example: Trump's response: 'I'm doing my job' The British businessman's controversial comments about the mists of time came after Trump said in an interview with ABC News that his business background would help the US with China's economic practices. "They don't play by the rules," he said. "I understand the way they work, I respect that. But we have a chance to really put a lot of money in there." Trump also said that despite what he termed a "small" trade imbalance, the US benefited from it because of the US dollar. "China devalued their currency but when they run our numbers, they've been just incredible. It's been incredible, so I wouldn't worry about that." Biomarkers of alcohol intake in chronic alcoholics. The study is motivated by a few peculiarities of alcohol metabolism: an instantaneous metabolic activation only after a switch of a regular drinking pattern, an increase of ethanol consumption in the course of time and a diurnal fluctuation of alcohol intake. Our intention is to develop a new strategy for the blood biomarkers of heavy drinking, by evaluating the long-term effects of ethanol in an individual's body. Therefore, 3e33713323
